THE COLLECTOR'S STORY.

He Denies that He Has Been Ungrateful to Evans and Treacherous to Clark, and Asserts that the Reverse is True

(Owensboro Messenger Nov. 16.)

Collector Crumbaugh, who probably now has as much notoriety in this section of the country as Ben Butler and Billy Mahone have in theirs, returned to the city on Tuesday, after ten days absence. It was supposed from his declaration in his letter of the 3d inst. to the Courier-Journal, "I leave in a few minutes for Washington," that he was off for the capital, but there are very good grounds for believing that he afterwards changed his mind, and has been doing what he could in Kentucky to bring influence upon the President to retain him in his position.

Although for several weeks past the Messenger has contained editorial and news matter concerning the collector of not a very complimentary nature, sufficiently provoking, perhaps, to make him wipe up the ground with a small newspaper man, if he were not a patient and even-tempered person, a representative of the paper made bold to approach him last night (you know, dear reader, a newspaper man will go after matter of interest to his readers where angels dare not tread), and asked him if he had been to Washington.

"I decline to answer that question," he replied, "nor do I care to be interviewed."

"But you have been accused of ingratitude and treachery to Al. Clark, and I understand you have felt particularly hurt at the Messenger's comment thereon. If you have any explanation in regard to this the Messenger will be glad to print it."

"It is true that I was hurt and surprised at what your paper has said about me, particularly, in view of its former kind treatment of me, and I think I can tell you some things that will show to you that it is Evans and Clark who have mistreated me. Of course there is no denying that Al. Clark was for me for collector, but to state that he had me appointed is a very great error. I consider that Gen.
Grant, Gen. Logan, Gen. Hutton, Secretary Chandler and Secretary Folger had me appointed. I don't deny that Evans, Clark, Bradley and other Kentuckians were for me, and of course all had their weight in the matter.
But it is extremely absurd to say that "Walter Evans created Crumbaugh," for the reason that he had been an office-seeker himself for ten years, and for places of no more dignity and importance than the one I hold. It would be illogical to say that he could have me appointed when he couldn't have himself appointed. I have been to Washington frequently in his interest. I have done for him four times what he did for me. I have been his friend while others vilified and abused him. Now, in regard to Clark, I think he owes me three times as much as I owe him. When I was first getting up my papers to make application to President Garfield for the collectorship, Clark was apparently my friend. He promised me a personal letter to Garfield. So did his partner, Judge Landis. I saw Judge Landis write his letter and hand it to Clark, and ask him to enclose it with his. Clark said he would when he wrote his that night. This was two weeks before I left for Washington. When I arrived at the capital I went to the Treasury department to examine the papers on file that were sent in by myself. I found everything that had been promised me, save the letter of Landis and Clark.
When I returned I mentioned this to Clark. He assured me that he had written according to promise and had mailed his letters with Judge Landis.
Supposing they had miscarried in the mail, I thought no more of it then, but I have had so many evidences of his treachery recently that I now believe he never wrote the letter, and that he withheld Judge Landis' letter also. But he afterwards appeared as friendly toward me as ever, and promised to do all he could for me. I know that he wrote to General Grant for me and telegraphed to President Arthur urging him to appoint me. After I was appointed I had so much confidence in him that I trusted him implicitly. I never made an appointment from Christian county except to applicants recommended by him, and declined to appoint those he opposed."

"When did your feeling toward him change?"

"When I found out during my trial that he had exposed a confidential letter to Evans that I had written to him. In fact, I suspected him about the time those warrants were issued against me. I am now well satisfied that there has been a distinct understanding between Evans and Clark ever since Evans was appointed Commissioner that they would oust me from my place and put Clark into it, and in my judgment that will be the outcome of this business if I go out, of which I am by no means certain."

"Did you refuse to recognize Clark after your trial?"

"I did, and for these reasons: I heard of remarks he had been making to friends in Hopkinsville, Bowling Green, Franklin and Owensboro concerning me; I knew his pretensions of friendship which he made to me up to and during the trial—indeed, until I refused to recognize him longer—were hypocritical, and his exposure of that confidential letter to Evans I regarded as treacherous. I had talked frequently with him about my trouble with Evans. He professed to be a friend of each, and I trusted him implicitly. He said that he intended to fix up the matter between us; that he intended to tell Evans that he couldn't afford to make war on me, because I knew of his connection with that Hopkinsville postoffice affair, and he wasn't yet confirmed. I believe Clark turned my letter about this over to Evans for the express purpose of having me ousted and that he might become collector himself."

"Why did you favor Garrigus and others over Clark for the place of revenue agent?"

"I will tell you about that. I received a letter from John D. White early in the spring, telling me that Capt. Tracie's resignation had been demanded, and asking me to name three men from whom one could be selected by Secretary Folger as his successor. It did not occur to me that Clark would abandon his law practice for a position like that, so I recommended Garrigus of Russellville, Cy. Brown of Hopkinsville, and Houston of Paducah. Afterward I wrote to these parties, telling them what I had done but informed them that I could show no partiality between them. Garrigus wrote me declining the place, and when I incidentally mentioned this to Clark, I was first apprised of the fact that he wanted the place himself. It at once dashed across my mind what was his reason for pursuing Cy. Brown that he could not afford to give up the sheriffship of Christian county for the place. But on account of our close intimacy, I at once did all I could to secure the place for him."

"You haven't told me what was the original cause of the trouble between yourself and Evans."

"Well, I suppose it was all brought about by some hot words he and I had on a street corner in Louisville, one night, on account of his refusal to support me for Secretary of the Navy. I lost my temper and wrote an unfortunate letter to Happy, which Happy sent him."

"This is the letter in which you referred to Evans as a 'small, narrow-minded politician,' I presume," said the Messenger man.

"Yes, but it is one that has never been published entire, and it never will be."

"Why did Garrigus give away your letter, which was full of kindly expression, to him?"

"I have a letter from him saying he did not do so, and that it must have been stolen."

"How about the letter to John D.
White?"

"I don't believe they were published with White's knowledge or consent. I believe he is too high-minded and honorable to do such a thing.
Those letters were sent by White to Secretary Folger at the time the revenue agent was to be appointed. He referred them to Commissioner Rann.
Evans found them in the Commissioner's office when he went into it, and turned them, or copies of them, over to Clark, who is trying to bring every letter I ever wrote into print, in order to hasten my dismissal and his appointment to my place. Why, I understand Clark has been instrumental in bringing out three of the applicants for my place, and is pretending to each of at least six of those now in the field that he is for him in the fight. This is a prearranged plan between him and Evans, in order that a squabble may be raised among the applicants, then Evans can go to the President and say 'Let's appoint Clark to this place and settle the matter.'"

"What do you think of the future?"

"I believe if the appointment of my successor is put off until the 10th of December, I have a chance for holding on. I think, however, that either Evans or I will have to go. I believe I can show that he instigated the prosecution against me because he knew I was cognizant of the suppression of the postoffice inspector's report of the Hopkinsville affair, and if I succeed I know the Senate will refuse to confirm his nomination. But if I go and Evans stays, Clark will be my successor, mark that. I have permitted myself to talk thus freely to you, because I am anxious to correct the impression that has been made by your paper that I have acted ungrate-fully or treacherously to any of my friends. I have shown you that the facts are just the reverse. Whatever else the newspapers may say about me, they cannot truthfully accuse me of these things. I have done some things that I now regret, but I have remained true to all who were true to me, and on that line I will continue to act until the last."

Always Ask For the Editor.

Above all things remember that the only way to get a thing printed is to see the editor personally. Editors don't go by the matter in a manuscript. They go by the looks of the writer. Besides that time hangs very heavily on the hands of the people around newspaper offices, and it is difficult to see what would become of them if would-be contributors did not call once in a while to talk about their articles or play checkers. Be careful however, in ascending to the editorial room to skip the double acting spring step which is always somewhere along the stairs, and turns over, landing victims in the cellar. This is not meant for contributors, but for peddlers, and nothing so worries an editor as to find some contributor's bones among those of peddlers when it comes to the annual cellar cleaning.—Philadelphia Call.

The Middle Initial.

(From the Detroit Free Press.)
He is a young man with a thorough understanding of the leading traits in human nature. He dresses well, carries an extra cigar, and he drops in and presents a card to the effect that he is engaged in canvassing for an embryo work to be known as "The Encyclopedia of States."

"Yes, but I don't care to subscribe," replied the citizen.

"Oh, but I don't want you to. The book will be sold on its merits. I am calling upon a few of the most eminent—"

Here he makes a pause to allow the shot to strike, and then continues: —"Citizens of Detroit—the most eminent and prominent citizens of Detroit to secure brief sketches of their lives."

"Ah," says the other, as he begins to melt.

"We desire to take five of the most prominent citizens of this county.
In the sketches we desire to show how they have risen from poor boys to great and honored men."

[Here occurs another pause to allow the victim to tickle himself.]
"You were the first of five selected," chirps in the young man.
"My mission is to secure your photograph in order to make a steel engraving. In the course of ten days I will be followed by the gentleman who writes the biographies. Have you a photograph?"

"Well—ah—I think so."

"We want one which does you full justice. The engravings cost us $55 each. This we pay out of our own pocket, but are compelled to make a charge of $5 each for the tint paper and the reference in the index. Let's see. What does the 'initial' in your middle name stand for?"

It invariably stands for a five dollar bill, and the young man leaves behind him such pleasant impression that the victim keeps grinning for two weeks. At the end of that time he becomes suspicious, and in the course of a month he becomes a dangerous man to society.

In Texarkana, the town lying partly in Texas and partly in Arkansas, the Marshal for the Texas and the Marshal for the Arkansas side were sent out to arrest a drunken man. It appears that he was lying across the State line, his head in Texas, the feet in Arkansas. Each Marshal argued for jurisdiction, and finally the Texan won, on the ground that the head was the offending part, as the legs did not intend to get drunk, and had no part in doing what superinduced intoxication.— Chicago Tribune.

A Tewksbury Tale.

One of the leading book-binding firms in this city has been using tanned human skin for a long time in their Russia-leather and Morocco bindings. Many of the beautiful and colored Russia-leather pocketbooks and ladies satchels are made of tanned negro skins. Gerry Wilstach, who travels for the only Cincinnati house that deals in this class of goods, says that their use now is quite general—the leading demand being for mulatto and peterson skins, though the full-blooded negro ranks higher in the market than the white. This is the first time we have ever heard of the negro ranking above the white man.—[Indianapolis Times.

SEMI-WEEKLY SOUTH KENTUCKIAN.

CHAS. M. MEACHAM, Editor

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1893.

The Farmers' Congress will meet in Louisville next week.

Jos. Firman, a freight conductor, was killed by the cars, on the C. & O. road. He lived in Fleming county.

An automatic dust and cinder deflector, to be adjusted to railway car windows, has just been patented.

The debating society in Ogden College, at Bowling Green, has decided that Abraham Lincoln was a tyrant.

The popular Democratic majority in Virginia is 17,934, which is considerable less than was at first estimated, but still large enough to bury Mahone.

Mr. Childs has been sued for breach of promise, in Chicago. The defendant will go into trial handicapped with a suggestive name.

The Frankfort Yeoman still addresses an exchange to the "Democrat," although that paper was superseded by the South Kentuckian five years ago.

A man in Massachusetts 88 years old, who had been a legal voter for 67 years and who had always lived near a voting place, cast his first ballot at the recent election.

Bradford Dunham has been appointed general superintendent of the L. & N. railroad lines. His salary is only $20,000 a year, but by practicing economy he may be able to live within his income.

It is now broadly intimated that the Kentucky Republicans will demand the second place on the Presidential ticket for Col. A. M. Swope, of Lexington, and that they will nominate Henry Watterson.

Hon. Henry Watterson delivered a masterly speech on tariff reform at Cooper's Institute, in New York, and the meeting was presided over and the speaker introduced by Rev. Henry Ward Beecher.

John Gaines is evidently getting rich running a daily paper in Bowling Green. He has recently bought a lot, built a house and has gone to housekeeping. Ostensibly he has "come to stay," for once in his life.

The Governor has appointed Dec. 24 for the holding of an election to fill the vacancy in the Legislature, caused by the resignation of Hon. W. N. Hogan, of Grant county, who resigned on account of ill health. The Legislature will assemble Dec. 31.

Mr. Walter P. Emerson, Kentucky news editor of the Courier-Journal, was married Wednesday to Miss Hattie McEwen, of Nashville. Mr. Emerson is a young man of newspaper tact and talent and we wish him unbounded happiness.

Charley Ford, who murdered Jesse James, is now on trial at Richmond, Mo., for the robbery of a stage at Augusta, in 1881. The wife and mother of Jesse James are the principal witnesses. They testify that Ford confessed to them that he was one of the band.

Of the $253,000 subscribed by the citizens of Louisville to aid in getting up the Great Southern Exposition, all but $2,500 has been collected. Seventeen fictitious names were found on the list, but the amounts opposite these names did not aggregate more than $200.

Near Jackson, Mich., Jacob Crouch his daughter and her husband Henry White, and a visitor named Moses Polley, of Transfer, Mich., were found dead in their beds, at the house of the former, having been murdered and the house robbed. Crouch was a millionaire and it was supposed had a good deal of money about his house.

Ex-Speaker Keifer is receiving letters from prominent Republican politicians asking him not to be a candidate for the empty honor of the nomination for Speaker of the 48th Congress. The reason given is "to make harmony in the party." It is not likely that Keifer will see himself as others see him.

"Drummers" don't often get left, but the traveling representative of an eastern tobacco house got badly bitten in Chicago. When he arrived a young lady, evidently looking for her father, rushed up to him, threw her arms about him, hugged and kissed him as if he expected next day to draw on him for $500 for a wedding outfit. Then she suddenly looked into his face, said "you're not my pa," gave a little shriek, blushed and rushed off. His fellow travelers were prodding him about the matter at the hotel in the evening when one of them suggested that he ought to wear his diamond pin on such trying occasions. He felt for his pin and found that the sweet girl had robbed him.—Park City Times.

The speakership is now the all-absorbing topic in Washington. The caucus will be held next Saturday and the Democratic Congressmen are arriving in the city daily. Up to last Friday, 61 had arrived who stood as follows on the Speaker's race:

For Carlisle, 31; for Randall, 16; for Cox, 11; for Springer, 1; Non-committal, 2.

According to the report, Mr. Carlisle has a majority over all his competitors. It requires 96 to nominate and the Kentucky candidate's chances seem to be decidedly the best, though the three leading candidates all claim to be confident of ultimate success.

The South Kentuckian offers a motion and the Herald-Enterprise seconds it, to abolish the office of Registrar of the Land Office and turn its duties over to a small salaried clerkship in some other department. If our contemporaries will accept an amendment adding the Adjutant General's office to the reorganization to a paid clerkship also, the GAZETTE will heartily stand in with the proposition.—Bowling Green Gazette.

HEAD SIZE VS. BRAIN POWER.

Among the recently-published statistics of head measurement, as inferred from the size of hats, are the following: Lord Chelmsford, 6 1/2 full, Dean Stanley 6 1/2, Lord Beaconsfield 7, the Prince of Wales 7 full, Charles Dickens 7 1/2, Lord Selborne 7 1/2, John Bright 7 1/2, Earl Russell 7 1/2, Lord Macaulay 7 1/2, Mr. Gladstone 7 1/2, Archbishop of York, 8 full.

These measurements are reproduced from statistics by Mr. F. F. Tucker, and the contemporary in whose columns they are reproduced is responsible for the remark: "Whatever may be the case with regard to brains, it would scarcely seem from these figures that hats are any true criterion of brain power."

It would be strange, indeed, if any moderately intelligent person supposed the hat, or even the head, could secure the measure of brain power. The late Dr. Pritchard finally disposed of the notion that cranial measurements could be accepted as brain measurements. Since his day the student of cerebral development has ceased to rely on what used to be called "phrenology." The chief point of interest as yet elicited from the direct investigation of brain measurements would seem to be that the cerebral organs commonly found in the class of brain workers show evidence of being locally and specially developed, and probably, as a physical consequence, are irregular and for the most part unsymmetrical.

Hereafter, probably, light may be thrown on the subject of special or regional developments, both in regard to their personal growth and transmission by heredity. For the present, however, we can only say that neither the hat nor the head furnishes trustworthy indications of mental power and capacity; and that the only feature of interest as yet noted is the curious fact of unequal development and consequent want of symmetry.—The Lancet.

John Geier, a Swiss settler in Laurel county, was shot and killed while trying to arrest a cow-thief.

Emigrants to Texas.

A party of emigrants from this county and Trigg left yesterday morning for Texas. They were P. T. Shelton and family and Jas. H. Huggins and family, of Longview, in this county, and Geo. F. Shelton and family, of Montgomery, Trigg county. They are all prominent and well-to-do farmers. They have bought farms near Kyle, Hayes county, Texas, and have houses already built and ready to move into. It is a matter of regret that these gentlemen have decided to leave Kentucky, but we wish them success in their new home. Quite a number of Christian county people have gone to Texas this year. Messrs. W. L. Jones, W. F. Pool and R. H. Ford went to Anson, Jones county last winter, and a few days ago Mr. Abe L. Ford and family, of Church Hill, joined them. Mr. W. W. Reynolds, of North Christian, will also leave this week and Mr. Ming Ingram, of Longview, will shortly join the party at Kyle. Several colored citizens, whose names we did not learn, also left with the party yesterday morning.

Deaths.

Mrs. Malinda Renshaw, wife of Enoch Renshaw, Esq., and daughter of Samuel and Mary McCord, died at her home near Era, in this county, Nov. 14th, 1883, in the 66th year of her age. Mrs. Renshaw was a firm believer in the doctrine that the entire human race will be saved, and died in that faith.

DIED.

At the residence of her brother-in-law, A. H. Lusk, Esq., of Nashville, Tenn., on Friday morning, Nov. 23, 1883, Mrs. Nannie Innes, aged 32 years.

The subject of this notice was the daughter of W. D. and M. L. Clardy. With every quality of heart and mind to adorn any circle of society, she has passed away in the very prime of womanhood. She was a faithful, earnest, working Christian, and the transition to her will be simply passing from the society of loved ones on earth to the more charmed circle of loved ones gone before, in the Paradise of God. She leaves a mother and sister, and many relatives and friends to treasure her memory in their now sad hearts.

Mr. Jas. M. Howe, the popular Main street Jeweler, inserts a prominent advertisement in this issue. He is one of Hopkinsville's most enterprising and progressive citizens and keeps abreast of the times with his business. His store is one of the handsomest and most conveniently located ones in the city and as a business man Mr. Howe is thoroughly reliable in every respect. Give him a call.

The metal has never been replaced over the sewer on Nashville street, lately finished. Last Saturday a wagon from the country heavily laden with wheat, ventured into the mire and was stalled in front of the Nashville street entrance to the Phoenix Hotel. With the aid of poles and stones the wheels were finally prized out. Quite a crowd collected around the spot, and some of the remarks made were not complimentary to the city.

A number of gentlemen held a meeting one night last week and decided to put forward a ticket for Councilmen that would insure a representation of every portion of the city. The following is the ticket agreed upon and which the city papers were requested to publish:

Jno. C. Latham, D.
E. P. Campbell, R.
F. J. Brownell, R.
W. J. Withers, D.
H. C. Gant, D.
G. W. Wiley, R.
O. S. Brown, R.
The first three are members of the present Board.

The Water Works Proposition.

Without taking a stand in opposition to water works, we desire to point out some of the objectionable features to the proposition submitted by F. M. Lowmore and which the people will have an opportunity to vote upon Dec. 8. He proposes, to state it briefly, to furnish the city with 60 hydrants for $3,000 a year and supply water to private consumers at 5 cents per 100 gallons, said contract to be in force for 25 years.

In the first place, 60 hydrants will not be sufficient to protect the entire city and the number might as well be put at 100 and let calculations be made on that basis, at a cost of $5,000 a year. If only a portion of the city be protected there will of course be great dissatisfaction amongst those who pay taxes without receiving any benefit.

Furthermore, water-works are not a perfect protection against fire and are not so regarded by cities that have them. The fire department will still have to be kept up and it is a well known fact that cities that have waterworks trust more to the efficiency of their fire department than anything else for extinguishing flames.

Then as to the character of the proposition: Twenty-five years is a long period and the city might get tired of her bargain and have occasion to wish she had waited a year or two and built water works upon her own hook. There is no special necessity for acting precipitately. The same proposition, or one just as good will be submitted one year or three years hence. There will always be people ready and anxious to make a contract of that kind with any city. At this particular time Hopkinsville needs to be a little careful. She owes a considerable amount now and the probabilities are that she will have to increase her public school facilities in a few years. Besides the railroad now being built through South Christian may retard her prosperity and make it necessary for her to raise money to build a competing line of railway. All these things must be considered in voting upon the proposition. It has been suggested that a tax of 2 cents on the $100, would raise the necessary amount of revenue. This is very wild figuring. The taxable property of the city is in round numbers $1,000,000. At the above named rate the amount raised would be $200 and instead of 2 cents it would take 30 cents to raise $3,000 and 50 cents to raise $5,000. The tax for all purposes is now $2.65 on the $100 and $6 poll tax. So the people may draw their own conclusions as to whether they want any more tax or not. The money annually raised is not more than sufficient to keep the streets in repair and meet the maturing liabilities of the city, and the system of drainage which would be rendered necessary by water works would probably keep the treasury in a depleted condition for several years. These are all objections which call for a postponement of the matter for a year or two at least.

On the other hand, there would be advantages in having the waterworks. They would of course be a partial protection to property in the immediate vicinity of the hydrants, provided the city was supplied with the hose necessary and it could be attached in time. As to sprinkling streets and flushing gutters, etc., the hydrants would be very useful, but more of a luxury than a necessity. But few private families would be likely to use the water, as cisterns are plentiful in the city and it ready looks like a matter of city pride is the most potent argument for the water works at this particular time.

The South Kentuckian feels in duty bound to present both sides of the question in order that the citizens may know what they are going to do. Unlike the public school bill voted for, this is not a necessity, but a matter that has objectionable features aside from the actual cost. We counsel no man to vote for or against the measure. We would not interfere in a progressive movement, but we are convinced that progressive movements cease to be meritorious when they are not characterized by wisdom, discretion and good judgment.

Strictly Business.

The special Thanksgiving attraction which the manager of the Opera House has secured for Thursday evening, is one of the best Comedy companies on the road. The New Orleans Times-Democrat of Oct. 20, said: "Philkins captured a crowded auditorium last night, and everybody was happy, as long as the curtain was up. Mr. Bishop has made a hit with 'Strictly Business' and each night the house increases."

The Picayune of the same date also said: "Large audiences are the rule at the Academy of Music this week. The funny play called 'Strictly Business' seems to give general satisfaction, and Mr. C. B. Bishop has captured the town by his acting."

In fact the press, wherever the piece has been presented, speaks in the highest commendatory terms of the comedy and of Mr. Bishop, the leading man. No one who is fond of fun and enjoyment should fail to attend Thursday evening. Tickets at the usual place and prices.

Sergeant Bates, who is carrying a flag over the country on foot and making patriotic speeches, arrived here from Crofton, late Saturday evening. He expressed disappointment that he was not met by a committee of prominent citizens. No place was provided for him to speak, but, nothing daunted, he mounted a goods box in front of Gish & Garner's drug store, and proceeded to discourse on "patriotic citizenship and national good will" to a small crowd that soon collected. He was followed by his son Frank, a boy about 14 years old, who made a speech about the flag he was carrying from the lakes to the Gulf. At the conclusion a collection was taken up from the bystanders. Sergt. Bates is a small, weasel-faced individual about 50 years old, with quick, nervous movements and is a fair speaker. His boy is a puny little fellow with a handsome face. They left for Pembroke Sunday and spoke in Trenton last night.

There are no new developments in the burglary matter at New Providence, Tenn. A woman, formerly the wife of a man named Thaxton, of Russellville, claimed to recognize the burglar as a Todd county rough named Bill Taylor, and expressed the opinion that his companion, who escaped, was her renegade husband. However, she subsequently stated that she could not be positive in her identification. Several tramps were arrested, but no evidence was discovered strong enough to hold any of them. Mr. J. J. Garrett, who was shot and wounded by the burglar who escaped, is now thought to be out of danger and on the road to recovery. The account of the fight given last Friday was substantially correct.

The mail sack was stolen from Solomon Snaden, col., the contractor on the Lafayette route, about 300 yards this side of Church Hill, on Tuesday night last. Two registered letters were in the sack, one for $21, the amount of the other not known. This is the third time in twelve months that the mail has been robbed at the same place. The sack has not been recovered. Snaden says he fired several times at the robber in the dark before the sack was taken from the spring-wagon.

We have anxiously awaited the opening of M. D. Kelly's Jewelry establishment, and this morning we realized our expectations; we found him busily engaged in opening one of the finest stocks of jewelry we have ever seen, including an immense stock of diamond lace pins, earrings, finger-rings, etc. We were shown one lace pin worth $500 and it is the finest thing we have ever seen.

Mr. R. H. Holland will shortly open up a cigar stand and billiard hall in the vacant room under his Opera House.

The roads are getting in a fearful condition. By-the-way what has become of the Turnpike Bill?

The editor of the Calhoun Courier calls the editors of the Owensboro Messenger "malignant and lying curs." The Courier man is young in the cause, but he will learn after awhile that such expressions never do any good in a paper and that personal controversies should be settled by private correspondence and not in the columns of a public journal.

To My Children,

My Dear, Dear Children.

Here I am once more, and you don't know how glad I am to greet you again and smile upon your laughing faces as you pass me by. Now, my dear children, I guess I owe you an explanation for being a little late in calling this year, but when I explain I know you will pardon me for the delay. If you remember last year, and for several years in fact, I have had my young friends, C. W. Metcalfe & Bro., at your place as my general distributing agents and those boys were as good agents as I had anywhere, but this year they referred me to their successor, a Mr. W. W. Radford, generally known as Whit, and that boy was just so jolly and told so many side-splitting jokes and wanted so many goods, and we were having such a good time, I tell you, I thought we would never get our ears ready to start for Hopkinsville, but we did at last, and arrived in your city Monday morning, Nov. 19, at 7 o'clock A. M., and we brought the largest stock of presents for you all that has ever before been deposited in the hands of any of my Hopkinsville agents. Those who doubt it I will refer them to our clever and accommodating R. H. Agt., Mr. J. W. I. Smith, who will take pleasure in sustaining my claim; so one and all, remember that my new agent, Mr. W. W. Radford, has all of my goods to be distributed, and by polite, attentive, and accommodating clerks, so one and all, call on him. Now, I will bid all of my children, both large and small farewell, wishing you lots of fun, I subscribe myself

Yours without a struggle, OLD KRIS KRINKLE.
